Definitions

Point-to-Point with Cap

After the one-, three- or six-year term, the beginning and ending values of the index are calculated for a percentage change. If the change is positive, your account is credited the percentage up to a cap. If the change is negative, your account is protected from some losses through a buffer. Any losses beyond the buffer will be deducted from your account.

Point-to-Point with an Annual Lock

Each year the beginning and ending values of the index are calculated for a percentage change. If the change is positive, it may be limited up to a cap. If the change is negative, the buffer covers up to 10% in losses. The growth and losses are locked in at the end of each year and used as the basis for next year's calculation. For a year that the change is zero, no growth or loss is locked in at the end of that year. After the six-year term, positive index interest is credited or negative index interest is deducted from your account value.

Point-to-Point Declared Performance Trigger Rate

After the one-year term, the beginning and ending values of the index are calculated for a percentage change. If the change is positive or zero, your account is credited the declared rate. If the change is negative, the buffer covers up to 10% in losses. Any losses beyond the buffer will be deducted from your account.

Hindsight 20/20<sup>SM</sup>

With the Hindsight 20/20 strategy, applied to BofA MP Indices, you automatically get the "best-of" performance out of Growth, Balanced and Defensive indices. Each is designed to perform in different market conditions. At the end of the 6-year point-to-point segment, whichever index has the best performance (grown the most or lost the least) is credited to the account value. If the best-performing index has losses beyond the buffer, that loss will be deducted from your account.
